Fecal Collection Assembly

Apollo

These two bags make up the fecal collection assembly part of the personal hygiene system used by Apollo astronauts. These bags were not flown. This self-contained system gives the astronaut flexibility and control in a weightless environment and allowed for simple and hygienic disposal.

Provided from NASA, Johnson Space Center

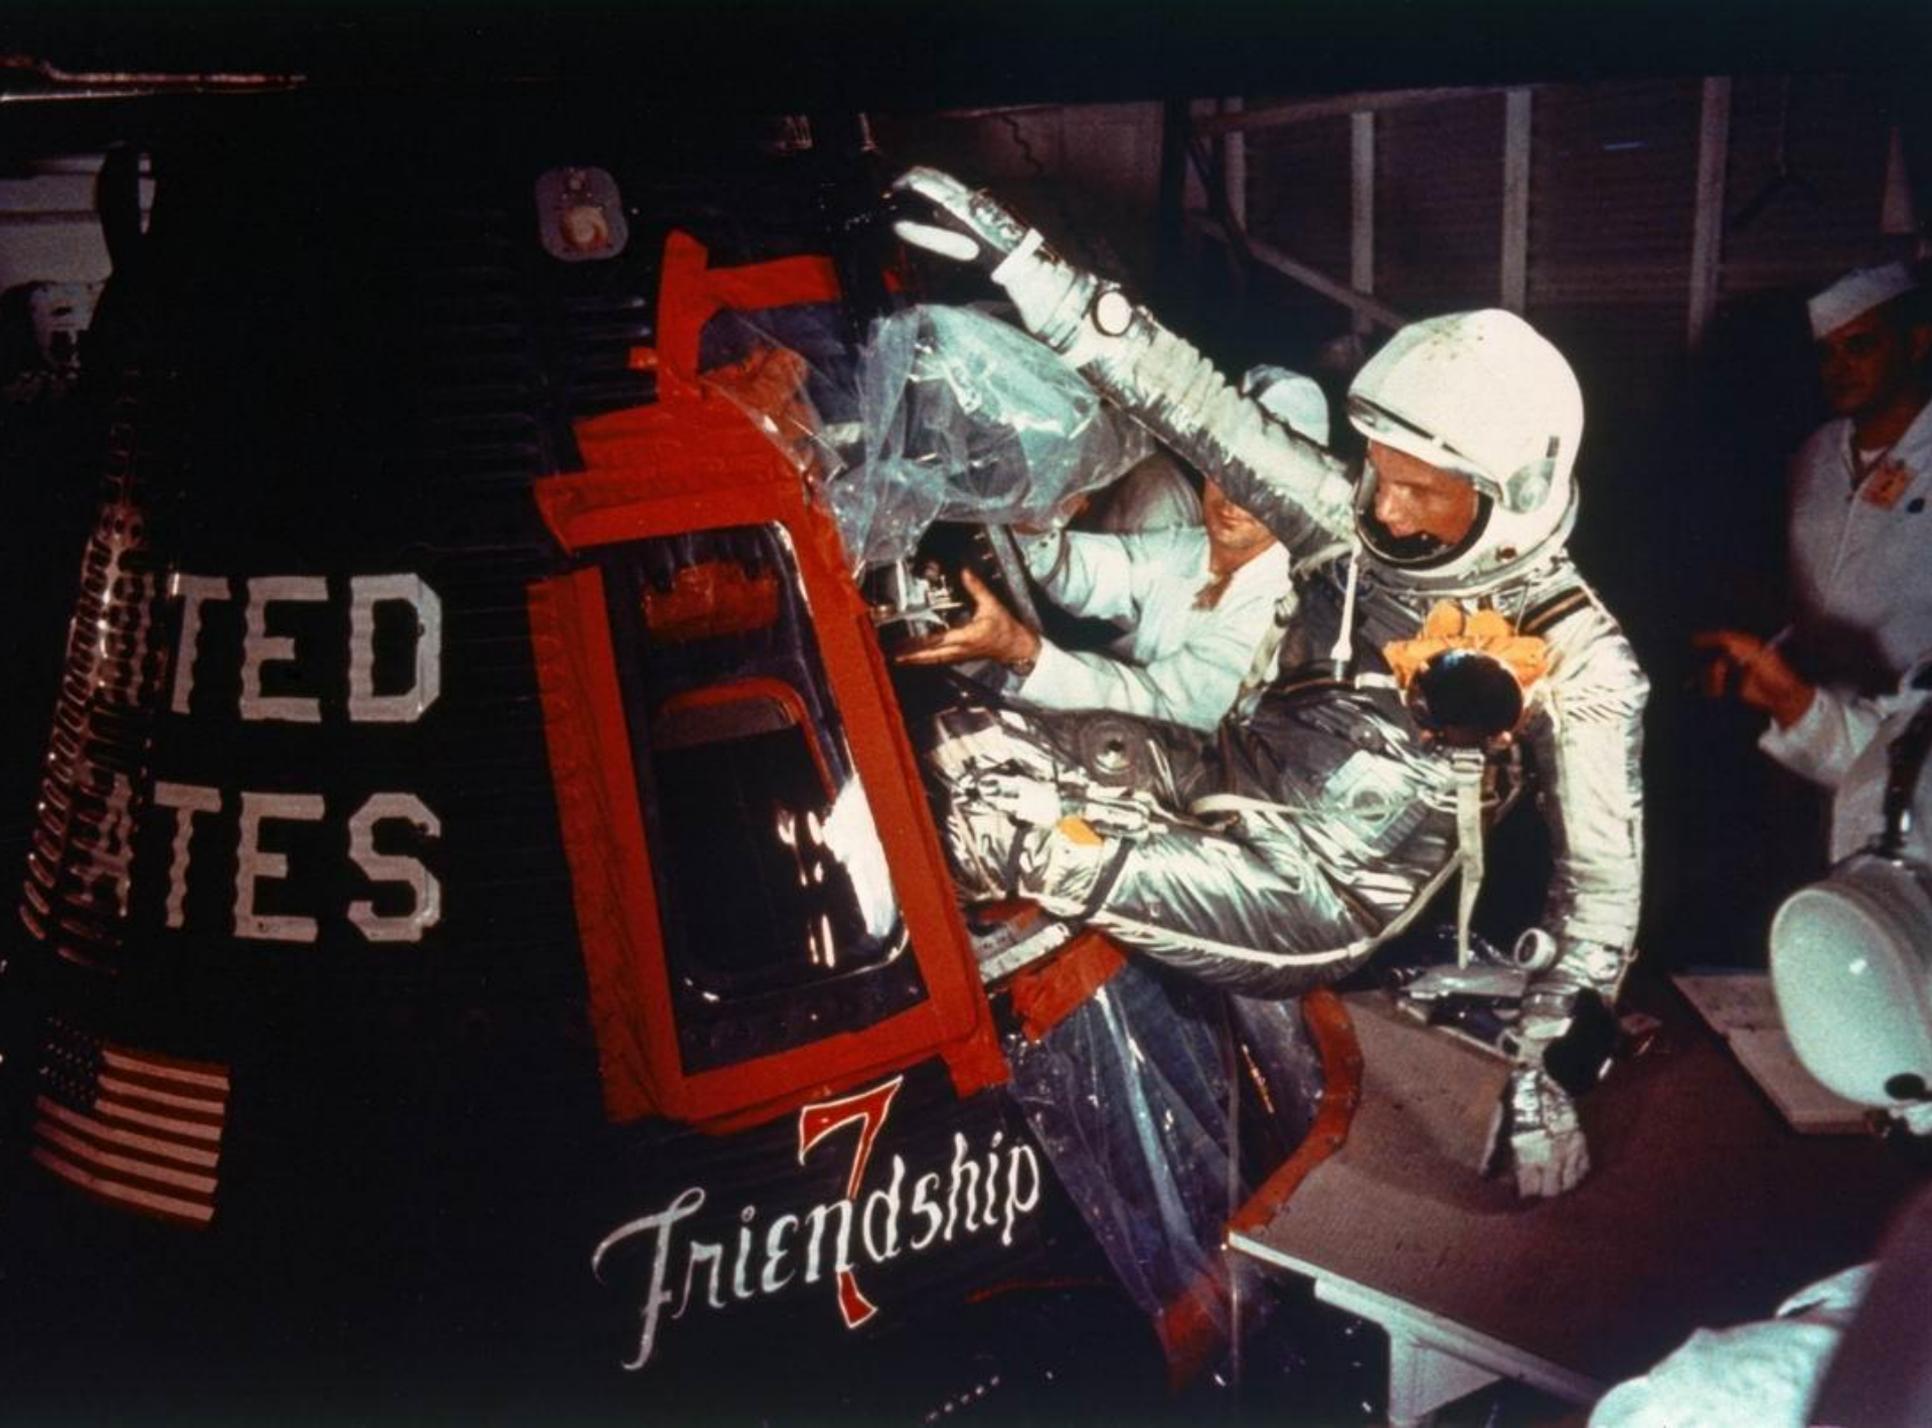

Disposable Absorption Containment Trousers

Space Shuttle

This type of undergarment was developed for female astronauts on early Shuttle flights to wear during launch or spacewalks. Male astronauts could wear a urine collection bottle and bag assembly. Now, these undergarments, made for female, change to one unitary, unisexually available disposable undergarments when wearing pressure suits.
